DETAILED ACTION

1. The preliminary amendment filed on 8/28/2003 has been entered. Claims 1-79 have been cancelled. Claims 80-96 have been added. Claims 80-96 are pending in the application.
2. During examination, the pending claims must be given the broadest reasonable interpretation. The examiner indicates some terms read in view of equivalent or interpreted functioning in a broadest reasonable in the field of three-dimensional object selecting and detecting.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 80-90 and 92-96 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Quaid, Arthur. E (US application 60/362368 and equivalent pgpUS20040034282).

With respect to claims 80 and 92, Quaid Arthur.E teaches a method and system for selecting an object in a three dimensional modeling environment (in virtual image space) using input device (haptic device) to determine a position of a cursor in three dimensional modeling environment (included operating a computer and the user input) and the environment containing one or more virtual objects (paragraph 0111); providing a two-dimensional representation of the cursor and at least one of the virtual objects and selecting a virtual object based on a positional correspondence of the selected object and the cursor in the (two-dimensional display) two-dimensional representation (paragraphs 0050 and 0111).

With respect to claims 81-83, 93, Quaid Arthur. E teaches wherein the position of the cursor corresponds to a position of an input device in real space; wherein the input is a user-controlled; wherein the input has at least six degrees of freedom; (paragraphs 0043 “the degree of freedom can be added or removed”, 0110, 0120).

With respect to claims 84-86, 94-96, Quaid Arthur. E teaches wherein the input is a haptic device, the haptic is adapted to apply a force to a user when the cursor coincides (occupy the same relative position or the same area in space) with the object in two of three dimensions; wherein the force is a friction force (paragraphs 0066, 0074, 0110).

With respect to claims 88-90, Quaid Arthur. E teaches applying a mathematical transformation to determine the positional correspondence; wherein the two-dimensional representation is a two-dimensional view; wherein the two-dimensional view is a selected one of a perspective view and an orthogonal view (paragraphs 0050 and 0103).

5. Claims 80 and 92 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Baldeweg et al (US 6734847).

With respect to claims 80, 92, Baldeweg et al teach a method and device for selecting an object in a three dimensional modeling environment (in virtual image space) using pointing device to determine a position of a cursor in three dimensional modeling environment, and the environment containing one or more virtual objects (column 1, lines 6-12, column 5, lines 29-39); providing a two-dimensional representation of the cursor and at least one of the virtual objects and selecting a virtual object based on a positional correspondence of the selected (noted that the change in the position of the pointing device in space leads to the displacement of a virtual cursor in the virtual image space) object and the cursor in the (two-dimensional display) two-dimensional representation (column 1, lines 42-47 and column 5, lines 29-39, a block "Display screen for 3D image objects" shows in the figure normally known in view of technology as 2-D display presentation for 3-D image objects).

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claim 91 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
